Chapter 1 by Cameron Stonecipher

As it seemed to be a normal day from when it started with me getting up and putting on my Silver oak's Steel bisons uniform. I run downstairs to everyone still sleeping so I made toast and a bowl of cereal but then my alarm on my phone when off I had set it for when the bus should arrive. I threw my bowl of half eaten cereal nosily into the sink and ran to get my bag and shoes. Slipping my sneakers on and bolting out the door almost missing the bus. I jump on to the bus. "You almost didn't make it" The bus driver said to me as I ran by him to the back of the bus. I then took my seat then it was off to school. Before classes started I looked around for my friends I ran up to the door to weight room where I then heard the sound of grunting coming from the room. When I open it and see my friend Jason Wulf who is german kickboxer, best at Silver oak academy he had longish spiky brown hair reaching down to the bottom of his neck. He was about six feet and three inches tall. He was wearing a pair of puffy russian kickboxer pants with a red scarf belt thing around his waist. The shirt he was a plaid shirt and he was beating the tar out of this punching bag it was leaking sand.

Chapter 2 by Cameron Stonecipher

"Yo wolf what's up" I said. Wolf threw a couple more punches and kicks then stopped and

"Hey why are you so creepy" "I'm not and I don't know what you are talking about" He said in an exaggerated german accent. We both walked down to the boy's locker room which we used to walk through to get the to the swimming pool. In Which to see our friend "Hey Kat!" I shout but she could not hear me because she was doing laps. So both me and Wolf waltzed trying not to slip on the water that Kat was knocking out of the pool. I made It to the water sports coach's office and Wolf was still trying not slip. Seeing that the water polo team left some of their equipment laying on the ground from there game that they played last night, they destroyed the neighboring high school of afton plains. I pick up one of the polo balls and reel to throw the ball at Kat but right as I was throwing the polo ball Wolf bumped me which threw me off. The ball hurtled at kat but it skipped of the water's surface and bounced and ricashaded off the pool ledge on the other side and it came back at me and hit me in the face Wolf then burst out laughing. The laughing had gotten Kat's attention. Her head popped up and out of the water. "Hey guys what's up" I still had my head still back from getting hit with the ball and wolf was still laughing. Catlin then climbed out of the water she was wearing her school swim team uniform which was silver and brown she had a long blue colored hair in pigtails. She grabbed her towel which had purple flowers and white background and wrapped it around herself. "It's almost time for classes" I said "Oh I lost track of time" she said. "I'll meet you outside the locker room" SO we both waited until she came out wearing a school uniform with red tie and blue skirt. But then all the sudden the minute bell rang we all looked at each other and started to booked it down the halls.
